Canada And Its Immigrants

The tide of immigration to Canada is rising. It will continue to rise in response to the desire of people in the British Isles and on the continent of Europe to emigrate to a land where they can find those opportunities for self-advancement for themselves and children, particularly their children, which are at present denied to them, and in response to the increasing recognition by the people of Canada that one of the Dominion's paramount needs is increased population, which recognition is slowly but surely finding acceptance in the adoption of a more up-to-date and vigorous policy of immigration by the Ottawa Government. A further incentive to increased immigration is found in the policy of the British Government encouraging and promoting immigration to the overseas Possessions of the Empire.

It is not sufficient for Canada and its future merely to receive thousands of new settlers. These people of diverse races and tongues must not only be received but made welcome; they must for their own future good and Canada's welfare and national stability and progress be assimilated as rapidly and completely as possible into a real and permanent Canadian citizenship.

In the past, unfortunately, such assimilation in the minds of many good Canadians has been conceived in a very narrow way. It has meant little more than the abandonment by new comers of their native tongue, customs, and native dress and the adoption of the English language, Canadian dress and customs. While the adoption of the language, customs, dress and manners of Canada is desirable and, in their own interests, necessary for all immigrants, it is not necessary, nor possibly even desirable, that they should wholly abandon and seek to forget the language and traditions of the lands from which they come.

It is of the first importance, however, that all people of foreign extraction should be made heartily welcome in Canada by our Anglo-Saxons. It is our duty to understand these newcomers. Particularly, we must abandon the attitude of viewing them with suspicion, even disgust. They are not Bohemians, nor dirty Gaiques, nor narrow, bigoted Methodists; they are people; they are human, with spiritual and intellectual capacities. Many of the very habits and characteristics to which Anglo-Saxons sometimes so strenuously object are the outcome of deep religious convictions—something no man should despise—or the result of centuries of inherited ideas which cannot be uprooted in a few years. Even if such uprooting was possible there would be grave danger of something less desirable and more dangerous taking the place of lost convictions and ideals.

These diverse people have a distinct contribution to make to the Canada of the future that is now in the making, a contribution quite apart from the viable, practical and economic one of tilling the soil, raising cattle, building railways, roads, of being hewers of wood and drawers of water for Canada. They bring to this new country habits of thrift and a willingness to work, and work hard even to the extent of downright drudgery, which most Anglo-Saxons have yet to learn. These people are real pioneers. They have not despised the land covered with bush to be cleared; no distance to market has been too great for them to travel; no stones too heavy to lift. They live frugally, clear their own land, haul their crops to distant market towns in zero weather. In a word, they are nation builders. They are not living for pleasure, but for future generations, and where you see their pioneer shacks, you also see lots of children.

These people, too, bring with them a burning love of liberty. They know the centuries of bitter experience what tyranny and oppression mean. They understand the horrors of war. True, there is danger they may misinterpret Canadian liberty for licence, but it is for the Anglo-Saxon to endeavor to understand and sympathetically teach and direct.

The Scandinavians bring to us the sturdy hardiness and rugged upstanding characters developed about the fjords in the land of the midnight sun, men of the type of Stefansson, the Arctic explorer, who is doing so much for the Canada of the future. The Polish people bring from the land of Paderewski an inborn love of music. Czechoslovakia sends us men and women thrilled by the inspiration derived from Huss and other national patriots. The Hungarian is still influenced by their great hero Kossuth.

These people bring a new strain into our Canadian life. They have a real love for the land; they love the smell of the rich soil, they love the beauty of the plowed field; they enjoy the toil in the fields. They bring to Canada things we lack. We have invited them to come; we need their contribution to the upbuilding of our Dominion. Let us, therefore, welcome them, strive mightily to understand them, encourage and assist them, have patience with them, because time will work wonders, and above all, let us not look down upon them because their ways are not altogether our ways. We owe them something, and it will be repaid in full measure if we exercise a reasonable patience and understanding, Canadian neighborliness and Christian charity.

Fate is what a man calls it when he gets into trouble for doing what he shouldn't do.

"I Had Bilious Attacks and Stomach Weakness"

Mrs. Wm. Robinson, Yorker, Sask., writes: "I suffered from stomach and liver trouble, and used to have bilious attacks so bad that I could do nothing for weeks at a time. My stomach would be so weak that not even a drink of water would stay on it. On my sister's advice, I began to use 'Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills,' and must say that they have made me feel like a new woman."

Canada's Exports

Great Increase Shown in All Products During Year

Canada's automobile exports in 1910 were but $400,000, and in 1920 they were $9,000,000. Pulp and paper exports jumped from $51,000,000 in 1913 to $8,000,000 in 1922; the rubber exports increased from $225,000 in 1910 to $4,000,000 in 1920; textiles increased from $62,648 in 1910 to $987,618 in 1920. Chemical exports increased in value in the same period to $9,250,000. Manufacturing exports have rapidly climbed until they represent 54 per cent. of the export trade of Canada in the last year.

Excellent Source of Revenue

Charitable Organizations Can Make Money Collecting Old Newspapers

Old newspapers from which the ink has been removed by processes lately discovered makes a good grade of book paper. In recent months manufacturers have paid as much as thirty dollars a ton for them, and they say that the supply is inadequate. Charities that organize to collect old newspapers find they have an excellent source of revenue. Incidentally they help the cause of forestry. It is said that six tons of waste paper saves an acre of forest.

Mothers' Best Friend In Rearing Children

Pain and sudden sickness are apt to come upon us at all times and safety lies in having always handy on the shelf a reliable relief like the good old "Nervine." For nearly half a century Nervine has been a family standby, and most mothers have come to rely upon it in case of colds, croup, whooping cough, cramps, indigestion and sudden attacks of nervousness, nervousness, nervousness, or external use. Nervine is worth its weight in gold in every home, and costs but 25 cents at any dealers.

Elevators In West

Elevator companies in Western Canada are constructing 200 or more country elevators this year at a cost of several millions, and at the head of the lakes $5,000,000 will be spent in new terminal elevators and in enlargement of old ones.

No Rest With Asthma

Asthma usually attacks at night, the one time when rest is needed most. Hence the loss of strength, the nervous debility, the loss of flesh and other evils which must be expected unless relief is secured. Fortunately relief is possible. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has proved its merits through years of service. A trial will surely convince you.

Ship 1,165 Cattle

One of the largest shipments of Canadian cattle that has ever left Montreal was carried by the steamer Irishman which sailed recently for Birkenhead. The shipment consisted of 1,165 head of store cattle, most of them from Ontario with weight of 1,100 pounds each.

Minard's Liniment for sale everywhere

Production of Chemicals During the year 1922 the value of Canada's production of chemicals and allied products amounted to over $100,000,000 of which some $25,000,000 worth were exported. Labor statistics covering the same period show that employment in the chemical industries increased by 5 per cent., while the general tendency of chemical production has been toward increased production and stabilization.

Saskatchewan Honey

Estimated that Twelve Tons Were Produced Last Year

A substantial increase in the production of honey in Saskatchewan is anticipated this year, according to officials of the Department of Agriculture. At present there are nearly 100 beekeepers in Saskatchewan. Fourteen of them produced a total of 2,938 pounds of honey last year, an average yield of 688 pounds for each apiary. The remaining apiaries yielded an average of about 300 pounds each, and it is estimated the 1922 production of honey in Saskatchewan was approximately 12 tons.

In the past twelve years the mines of Canada have yielded an appraised wealth of two billion dollars. It is estimated that the value of securities connected with Canada's mining enterprises is $774,740,000, with more than fifty per cent. of the stock owned in Canada. Those who invested in the development of Canadian mines have been paid $210,000,000 in dividends in the last twelve years.

Canadian National Parks Offer Unsurpassed Attractions For Great Army Of Tourists

Each year evidences a greater appreciation of the Canadian National Parks both on the part of the Canadian people and visitors from other lands, and each passing season further extends the forefront of the men who have retained for all time these enchanting beauties of nature to be the playgrounds of a continent for all time.

Though the final figures are not available for the past year and the annual report, uncompleted, it is authoritatively stated that the parks in the 1922 season welcomed as great a volume of visitors as they had ever known, at least, equalling the traffic of the year 1916, which had hitherto stood a record. In that year a total of 366,000 holidaymakers, of whom 75,000 were Canadians, visited the National Parks to revel in their wild beauties. In the year 1921 it is estimated that foreign visitors to the parks left the sum of nearly $20,000,000 in the country, or almost $2.25 per capita of Canada's population, and this amount must have been substantially augmented last year.

It is confidently anticipated that this season the traffic to the National Parks, especially those which lie in the western and mountain regions, will be invaded by a yet greater army of tourists. Every year the desire to spend freer, more unconventional holidays, the most striking antithesis of the ordinary day's routine, becomes more pronounced, and greater crowds seek to give expression to this urge. It is coming to be more and more unprecipitated, too, that no area is unsatisfied this craving, nowhere is the realm of nature so inviolate, as the Canadian National Parks, where the most rigorous precautions are taken that the beauties of nature shall be preserved unutilized, the trammels of which be banished as far as possible and these wooded sanctuaries retain their immaculate charm.

The Rocky Mountains Park has for years been the Mecca of the continent's holiday-makers bent on such a vacation, and it easily leads all other resorts as a prime favorite for resorting in nature's haunts where civilization is left not too far behind. In more than one vote taken among tourist parties who had in addition travelled through many or all of the United States National Parks, it was elected as the most attractive and entertaining. In 1916, of the 166,000 tourists at the various Canadian parks, 71,000 were visitors at Banff, the gateway to this unrivalled playground.

For the motor-traveller who, holiday bent, seeks to penetrate the heart of nature and has learnt to love the rugged, untarnished beauty of the Canadian Rockies, 1922 is, in one respect, a signal year. The last day of June will see the official opening of the Banff-Windermere Road, the last completed section of the Canadian sector of the Grand Circle Tour which stretches up into Alberta. For 600 miles from California and takes in ten National Parks. For years work has progressed strenuously upon it, tearing through pine forests and blasting through mountain strongholds, until now the way lies open to what is undoubtedly the most picturesque motor trip on the continent.

Motorists who pass that way this summer will be real pioneers. The new road is built through the heart of some of the finest scenery in the Rockies, seventy-three miles of it being through virgin mountain and forest country where many of the peaks as yet bear no name. It crosses two mountain passes, the main range of the Rocky Mountains being traversed via the Vermilion near an altitude of 5,000 feet and later the lower range through the Sinclair pass an elevation of 4,900 feet. The grades, however, are easy, the average being 3 per cent, and the maximum 3 per cent, which is maintained only for about 400 feet.

Holidaying in this section holds unsurpassed attractions for the motorist camper. Until the International Boundary is reached again he must be prepared to leave the trappings of civilization doubtfully behind and manage with the little camps which have been situated periodically along the trail in such a way that the primitive aspect is in no way violated. One might write exhaustively of the many wonders of this trip, the virgin forests and towering mountains, the Vermilion paint pots, the rainbow hot springs, the rugged beauty of Lake Windermere, and the varied attractions of many detours. Suffice it to say that the month of June opens up to motorists a new western wonderland and playground which, it may safely be said, is unequalled in the continent and probably in the entire world.

Increased Consumption Of Milk California Uses Milk Extensively In Public Schools

In the movement for the greater consumption of milk and its products which is going on in many states of the Union, California stands at the head. There is scarcely a city of any size in California that has not some sort of milk service in the public schools. In San Francisco, 10,500 half-pint bottles are purchased by the children at the school lunches every day. In Berkeley every school has a similar service. Nutrition classes are also common in the principal cities. Every child in the nutrition classes is required to drink a quart of milk a day. Doctors, dentists and opticians give their services free of charge. In 1922 the people of California consumed 12,500,000 gallons more milk than in any previous year, the per capita consumption increasing from 17½ gallons in 1921 to 22 gallons in 1922. The consumption of butter increased from 22 lbs. to 22½ lbs. per capita in the same period.

Canada's Rivals In Dairying

New Zealand and Australia Capture Large Share of Trade

The Dominion Dairy Commissioner, Mr. J. A. Ruddick, who with Mr. W. A. Wilson of Regina, Saskatchewan, recently returned from a visit to New Zealand and Australia, states that New Zealand and Australia have made great progress in the dairy industry in recent years. Many new factories have been built and many have been reconstructed and modernized. Australia too has made great advances, large factories in New Zealand, being the rule, some of the creameries making as much as 800 to 1,000 boxes of butter a day. In New Zealand it is a small cheese factory that does not make 400 or 500 tons in a year. Mr. Ruddick is of opinion that Canada will meet much keener competition in the future in the matter of quality and quantity of dairy products from these countries than she has in the past. Relating to these facts it is interesting to note that the amount of butter graded in New Zealand in the month of December, 1922, was 9,768 tons, compared with 6,128 tons in the corresponding month of the previous year. The total for the last three months of 1922 was 39,663 tons against 25,544 tons in the same period of 1921.

Saves Trip to Paris
Two young New York girls are putting on a fashion show that costs $580 for each ticket of admission. It is held for those who deal in ladies' frocks. The price of admission is considered cheap because it saves the cost of sending designers to Paris.—New York Correspondent.

Crop Prospects Good
There is every indication that Western Canada will reap a bountiful crop this year. Not at any time in the past five years have prospects looked so promising. There appears to be abundance of moisture, and the farmers and business men are feeling much better regarding the prospects.

Canada's Railway Progress An Outstanding Feature In Development Of Dominion

Poultry Marketing Co-operation

Elements That Are Necessary If Success Is To Be Achieved

Write the title of a bulletin just issued by the Dominion Livestock Branch, "Co-operation in Marketing Poultry Products," would indicate that its contents were of interest to those engaged with poultry business, nevertheless the majority of the principles laid down are applicable to any form of agricultural co-operation. The writer, Mr. A. Benson, District Poultry Promoter for Ontario, hits a vital point when he says that while there is evidently an earnest desire on the part of producers to improve existing marketing conditions, there appears to be a lack of uniformity of thought and ideas as to methods of procedure, and the limits of the field in which co-operating producers can hope to achieve the greatest and most permanent success. It is evidently with a view to help in remedying this condition of affairs that the bulletin has been written and published. Not alone are the fundamental essentials to success and the principle of co-operation laid down, but details are given relative to organization, the loyalty and confidence that must prevail, to the methods of management that must be adopted and maintained if success is to be achieved, to warehouse methods, to marketing to grading and standardizing of eggs, to pooling, to financing, to the survey that should be taken of conditions and territory to be controlled prior to organization, to the east-west contract that should be made between members, and to the attitude of producers; the whole concluding with the rules of a suggested market agreement for local units.

A simple way to poach an egg is to put it into a teacup in which a piece of butter has been placed. Put the cup in a small pan of boiling water, and the egg will be ready to take up in five minutes.

One of the outstanding features in Canada's development and one which has much to do with the progress of other lines of industry is that of railways. The growth of railways has been almost phenomenal, especially during certain periods, and while, due to known causes, eras of depression have been encountered, on the whole the operation of Canada's railway lines has been successful.

The expansion of settlement, the rapid progress of agriculture, the development of mineral and forest industries, says the Natural Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior, have called for the construction of many miles of railway, both of trunk and branch lines, and unannounced is made by both the Canadian National, Canadian Pacific and the Ontario systems that several additional branch lines are under construction or in contemplation for the present season.

Commencing with 1871, the first census period, following Confederation, when Canada had but 2,626 miles of railway, with an invested capital of $257,935,388, Canadian railways made steady progress until 1911. At that time 25,400 miles were in operation, with a capital investment of $1,528,693,201. In the three-year period between 1911 and 1916, however, railway expansion was almost phenomenal, 1916 showing 37,434 miles in operation, an increase of 12,034 miles in the five years, and capital of $1,892,136,774. This heavy programme of railway construction was deemed necessary to meet the needs of the country, and so it has developed. Slower progress is reported since 1916 as during the war period practically no building took place. The year 1921, however, shows railway mileage in Canada as 39,841, with capital investment of $2,164,687,626. The total earnings of the railways in 1916 were $261,888,654, and expenses $130,542,759, while for 1921 the earnings were $468,908,591, and expenses $422,551,295.

Nothing probably could give a better indication of Canada's industrial growth than railway traffic both passenger and freight. In 1901 steam railways carried 18,772 passengers, in 1911 they carried 37,997,718 passengers, while in 1920 the number carried was 51,281,422. Freight traffic shows even a greater growth, 36,999,271 tons being moved in 1901, 78,884,292 tons in 1911, and 127,428,154 tons in 1920.

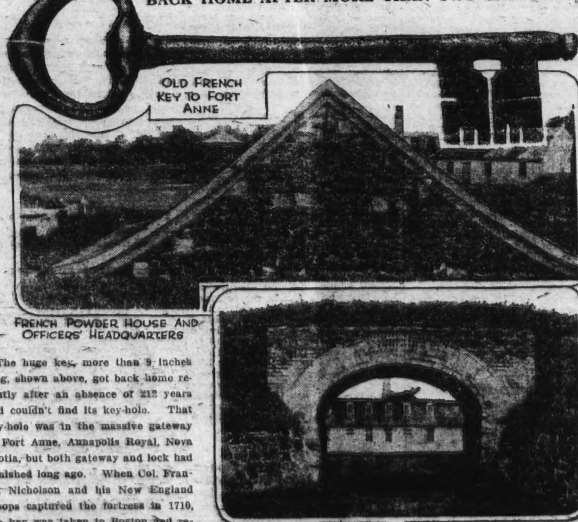

The fact that the development of natural resources is taking in providing freight traffic to the railways is evident in the fact that in 1901 the tonnage of forest products was 5,301,319, in 1911 it was 15,238,347, and in 1920 22,259,000 tons were landed. Grain provided 4,894,853 tons of freight in 1901, 7,545,516 tons in 1911, and 12,295,458 tons in 1920. Products of mines in 1911 supplied the railways with 25,652,296 tons of freight and in 1920, 45,019,299 tons. Manufactures, into which natural resources enter almost universally provided 13,573,347 tons of freight in 1911 and 32,925,294 tons in 1920, among the latter being wood pulp and paper with 3,447,614 tons.

To handle this traffic the railways used 2,433 locomotives in 1901 and 6,030 in 1920; 1,159 first-class passenger cars in 1901, and 2,212 in 1920; 45,994 box and cattle cars in 1901, and 167,178 in 1920; 22,128 coal and flat cars in 1901, and 51,281 in 1920. The expansion of agriculture, the development of forest, mineral and fisheries resources, with their concomitant manufacturing activity portend for the Canadian railways a period of increasing freight traffic and the resultant expansion necessary to keep pace with the demands for the moving of this rapidly growing tonnage.

Leads in Child Welfare

In a recent address before the New York Canadian Club, Dr. James W. Robertson, of the University of Toronto, the Executive of the Canadian Red Cross Society and Chief Commissioner of the Boy Scouts Association of Canada, declared that in the past four years Canada had made more real progress than any other nation along the lines of child welfare. Six Canadian universities are giving courses to women to fit them for work in saving the lives of babies, he said.

KEY OF OLD FORT ANNE, AT ANNAPOLIS ROYAL BACK HOME AFTER MORE THAN TWO CENTURIES

FRENCH POWDER HOUSE AND OFFICERS' HEADQUARTERS

The huge key, more than 9 inches long, shown above, got back home recently after an absence of 212 years and couldn't find its key-hole. That key-hole was in the massive gateway to Fort Anne, Annapolis Royal, Nova Scotia, but both gateway and lock had vanished long ago. When Col. Francis Nicholson and his New England troops captured the fortress in 1710, the key was taken to Boston and remained there until September, 1922, when it was returned to Fort Anne by the Massachusetts Historical Society. In accepting the key, J. M. Fortier, Honorary Superintendent of Fort Anne, now a National Park, regretted that, while the society was taking such good care of it, "our fathers let the gateway and the gate to which this key belonged, go to pieces and utterly disappear so that we only know of their existence and location by the old plans, tracings of which are in our museum."

The remainder of old Fort Anne, however, is well preserved, and each year thousands of tourists visit it, walk along its grassy ramparts, pass through the quiet salt-pit and view the interesting relics in the museum which was built as officers' quarters by Queen Victoria's father, the Duke of Kent. The fort covers 31 acres, overlooks beautiful Annapolis-Basis and is exceedingly picturesque. Sieur de Monte and Samuel de Champlain discovered and founded Fort Royal (now Annapolis Royal) in 1604, four years before Quebec was settled. The first fort was built in 1685 and the present one between 1688 and 1710. It was the armed outpost of Acadia and defender of Evangeline's people, and was besieged thirteen times.

Annapolis Royal, easily reached from Boston and St. John, N.B., is but one of many picturesque places in Nova Scotia. Near by is Grand Pre, made famous by Longfellow, from which Evangeline and her Acadian neighbors were expelled in 1755. The site of her home is a park from which Evangeline in bronze seems to scan the Basin of Minas in unending quest of her lost lover, Gabriel. There are good hotels at Digby and Kentville, and the Liverpool chain of lakes and Lake Kedagogue are favorite resorts for lovers of canoeing, camping, fishing and hunting.

WHEN YOUR THROAT IS SORE

It may be only a slight cold now—just tickling in the throat.

But little colds snow grow large and dangerous. Often they become chronic, develop catarrh and end in consumption.

Cata-rhoozies is the remedy. It draws inflammation and soreness out of the throat. Relieves the cough, cuts out the phlegm, makes breathing easy, kills any germs lodged in the mucous lining of the throat or lungs.

"I'll tell you what I'll do, Moran," he said, finally. "Give me a hand out of this hole, or come down here yourself. Throw aside your gun, but keep your knife. I'll allow you that advantage. Meet me face to face. Damn you, be a man! Anything that you can gain by my signature, you can gain by my death. Get the best of me, if you can, in a man's fight. Pah!" He spat contemptuously. "You're a coward, Moran, a white-livered coward!—You don't dare fight with me on anything like equal terms. I'll get out of here somehow, and when I do—by Heaven, I'll corner you, and I'll make you afraid."

"Get out?" How Moran laughed at the idea to scorn. "Your friends can look for you from now till snow-fall. They'll never find even your bones. Rot there, if you choose. Why should I take a chance on you when I've got you where I want you? You ought to die. You know too much."

"Yes," Wade retorted grimly. "I know too much. I know enough to hang you, you murderer. Who killed Oscar Jensen? Answer that! You did it, or you had it done, and then you tried to put it on Santry and me, and I'm not the only one who knows it. This country's too small to hold you, Moran. Your fate is settled already, whatever may happen to me."

"Still, I seem to be holding four aces now," Moran grinned back at him. "And the cards are stacked in my favor."

Left alone, Wade rolled himself a cigarette from his scant hoard of tobacco. Already the darkness of the deep shadows in his prison marked the approach of night, and he had the appetite of a healthy man. The knowledge that he was to be denied food made him feel the hunger, until he resolutely refused to think of eating out of his mind. The water, trickling down the face of the rock,

MOTHER OF LARGE FAMILY

Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Other Mothers

Hemford, N. S.—"I am the mother of four children and I was so weak after my last baby came that I could not do my work and suffered for months until a friend induced me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Since taking the Vegetable Compound my weakness has left me and the pain in my back has gone. I tell all my friends who are troubled with female weakness to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for I think it is the best medicine I ever used. You may advertise my letter."—Mrs. GEORGE L. CHURCH, Hemford, N. S.

My First Child

Glen Allen, Alabama.—"I have been greatly benefited by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for bearing-down feelings and pains. I was troubled in this way for nearly four years following the birth of my first child, and at times could hardly stand on my feet. A neighbor once recommended the Vegetable Compound to me after I had taken doctor's medicines without much benefit. It has relieved my pains and gives me strength. I recommend it and give you permission to use my testimonial letter."—Mrs. IRENE GLEN Allen, Alabama.

was a God-send, though, and he drank frequently from the little stream.

By habit a heavy smoker, he viewed with dismay the broads which he had already made on his store of tobacco for that deprivation he felt would be the most real of any that he could suffer. He tried to take short puffs upon his cigarette, and between them shielded the fire, with his hand, so that the air-draughts in the ashtray might not cheat him of any of the smoke. He figured that he had scarcely enough tobacco left for a dozen cigarettes, which was less than his usual daily allowance.

On searching his pockets, in the hope of finding a second case of Durham, he chanced upon his clasp-knife, and viewed the find with joy. The thought of using it as a weapon did not impress him, for his captors would keep out of reach of such toy, but he concluded that he might possibly use it to carve some sort of foothold in the rock. The idea of cutting the granite was out of the question, but there might be strata of softer stone where he could dig into it. It was a forlorn hope, in a forlorn cause, and it proved futile. At his first effort the knife's single blade snapped off and he threw the useless handle away.

Darkness fell some time before the cool night air penetrated the fissure; when it did so the cold seemed likely to be added to his other physical discomforts. In the higher altitudes the nights were distinctly chilly even in mid-summer, and he had on only a light coating of shirt above his waist. As the hour grew late, the cold increased in severity until Wade was forced to walk up and down his narrow prison in the effort to keep warm. He had just turned to retrace his steps, on one such occasion, when his ears caught the soft pat of a foot fall on the ground above. He instantly became motionless and tensely alert, wondering which of his enemies was so stealthily returning, and for what reason.

He thought it not unlikely that Moran had altered his purpose and come back to shoot him while he slept. Brave though he was, the idea of being shot down in such a manner made his flesh crawl. Stopping, he picked up a fragment of rock, although he realized the futility of the weapon, it was all he had. Certainly, whoever approached was aiming at the worst, most stealth, which argued an attack of some kind. Drawing back the hand that held the stone, the catterman shrank into a corner of the fissure and waited. Against the starlight he had an excellent view of the opening above him, and possibly by a lucky throw the stone would serve against one assailant at a time.

The spat-pat-pat drew nearer and stopped, at last, on the extreme edge of the hole. The darkness deepened and showed that this was no human enemy. If the sound had been louder, Wade would have sworn that the noise was made by a bear; but as it was he guessed the prowler to be a mountain lion. He had little doubt that the beast, most of them were notorious cowards unless cornered, and when recently a pair of fighting grizzlies perched down into the fissure, he buried the stone at them with all his might. His aim was evidently true, for with a snarl of pain the animal drew back.

But just as amongst the most pacific human races there are some brave spirits, so amongst the fiercest of lions there are a few which possess all the courage of their jungle brothers. Actual by overbearing curiosity, and else by a thirst for blood, the big cat returned again and again to the edge of the hole. After his first thrust Wade was unable to hit the beast with a stone, although his efforts had the temporary effect of frightening it. Gradually, however, it grew bolder, and was restrained from springing upon him only at the moment when the sixth sense which warned it of the impossibility of getting out of the fissure after once getting in, came into play. Baffled and furious, the lion snifled and prowled about the rim of the hole until he would surely leap upon him.

He picked up his broken pocket-knife and waited for this to happen. The shattered blade would be of little use, but it might prove better than his bare hands if he had to defend himself against the brute's teeth and claws.

CHAPTER XVII.
A War of Wits

"Kiddnap?" Gordon Wade said at Dorothy's announcement. Mrs. Purnell sank, with a gasp, into her rocking-chair, astonished beyond expression. She listened, with anxiety scarce less than her daughter's, to the girl's account of the incident as he had it from Troubridge. Her mouth opened and shut aimlessly as she picked up her gingham apron. If Wade had been her own son, she could hardly have loved him more. He had been as tender to her as a son, and the news of his disappearance and probable injury was a frightful shock. Luckily she was able to relieve her own anxiety by disputing the fact of his danger.

"Bill Santry found their trail," Dorothy said with a gesture so tragic that it wrung her mother's heart strings. "He followed it as far as he could, then lost it." In any other case she would have tried to keep the bad news from her mother, because of her nerves, but just now the girl was too distraught to think of any one but the man she loved. "Oh, if I could only do something myself," she burst out. "It's staying here, helpless, that is killing me. I wish I'd gone with Lem up into the mountains. I would have if he hadn't said I might better stay in town. But how can I help? There's nothing to do here."

"The ideal," Mrs. Purnell exclaimed. "They'll be out all night. How could you have gone with them? I don't believe Gordon has been kidnapped at all. It's a false alarm, I tell you. Who could have done such a thing?"

"Who?" The question broke Dorothy's patience. "Who's done everything that's abominable and contemptible lately here in Crawling Water? That Moran did it, of course, with Senator Rexhill behind him. Oh!"

"Nonsense!" said her mother, indignantly.

"Lem," howbridge thinks so. Nearly everybody does."

"Then he hasn't as good sense as I thought he had," Mrs. Purnell said, and moved toward the kitchen. "You come on and help me make some wafles for breakfast. There are people that will take such foolishness out of your head. The idea of a Senator of the United States going about kidnapping!"

Dorothy obeyed her mother's wish, but not very ably. Her face was flushed and her eyes hot; ordinarily she was a splendid housekeeper and a dutiful daughter, but there are limits to human endurance. She mixed the batter so clumsily and with such profuse waste that her mother had to stop her, and she was so angry that she salt into the sugar bowl when Mrs. Purnell snatched it out of her hands. "Go into the dining-room and sit down," Dorothy, she exclaimed. "You're beside yourself." It is frequently the way with people who are sitting on in years and are sick, to charge their own shortcomings on any one who may be near. Mrs. Purnell's worried, wondering which of his enemies was so stealthily returning, and for what reason.

"What's the matter now?" she demanded, when Dorothy left her supported on her plate.

"I was thinking."

"Well, can't you tell a body what you're thinking about? What are you sitting there that way for?"

"I was wondering," said Dorothy in despair. "If Helen's friend knows where Gordon is."

Mrs. Purnell snorted in disdain. "Lem's a sick child, what put that into your head? Drink your tea. I'll do you good."

"Why shouldn't she know, if her father does?" The girl pushed her spat farther away from her. "She would be coming all the way out here with him—he wouldn't have brought her with him—if they weren't sticking together. She must know. But I don't see why."

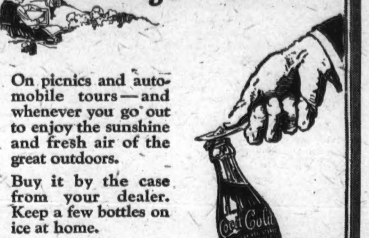

"Dorothy Purnell, I declare to goodness, I don't believe you're sane. Mrs. Purnell dropped her fork. "All this about Gordon is bad enough with out my being worried. I don't want to even give him up to her, if she'd tell me that." Dorothy's voice was wistful, and she seemed to be talking to herself rather than to her mother. "I know she thinks I've gone between her and Gordon, but I haven't meant to. He's just seemed to like me better; that's all. But I'll do anything to save him from Moran."

"I should say that you might better wait until he asks you before you talk of giving him up to somebody," Mrs. Purnell spoke with the primness that was to be expected, but her daughter made no answer. She had never mentioned the night in Moran's office, and her mother knew nothing of Wade's kiss. But to the girl it had meant more than any declaration in words. She had kept her lips revolute until that moment, and when his kiss had fallen upon them it had fallen upon virgin soil, from out of which had bloomed a white flower of passion. Before then she had looked upon Wade as a warm friend, but since that night he had appeared to be talking in another guise: that of a lover, who has come into his own. She had met him then, a girl, and had left him a woman, and she felt that what he had established as a fact in the one, rare moment of his life, belonged to him and her. It seemed so wholly theirs that she had not been able to bring herself to discuss it with her mother. She had won it fairly, and she treasured it. The thought of giving him up to Helen Rexhill, of promising her never to see Wade again, was overwhelming, and was to be considered a sacrifice to a last resort, but there was no suffering that she would not undertake for his sake.

The total elevator capacity of Port Arthur and Port William will reach 65,000,000 bushels by September, this year, according to the chief statistician of the Port Arthur Chamber of Commerce. In 1900 the total storage capacity of the two ports was only 6,700,000 bushels, of which Port Arthur controlled only five per cent. By the close of 1924 the elevator capacity is expected to reach seventy millions.

Growth of Canada

That Canada was gradually becoming more and more of an industrial country, and that Canadians themselves were not truly aware of the fact was the opinion expressed before the Winnipeg Rotary Club by Prof. R. C. Wallace, of the University of Manitoba. He stated that during the past 25 years the population of Canada had increased 80 per cent, the railway mileage 150 per cent, while the industrial life of the country increased 700 per cent.

Secy-treasurer Town of Stony Plain.

How Voting Will Be Done

From all sides are coming queries as to how electors may register for their particular choices on the preferential transferable vote ballot, to be submitted to the province on November 5th for a decision of the liquor legislation.

Voting must be done by means of the numerals 1, 2, 3, 4, and not by the ordinary "X" or "Yes" and "No."

It will not be necessary to vote for more than one question on the ballot, which will contain four alternative proposals. "Plumping" will therefore be permissible. However, an elector may vote for all four questions if he so desires in the order of his preference.

"Plumping" may be done in regard to the question B, C, D, the same as for question A, although it will be recognized that such action may not have the same result as might be obtained in "plumping" for A—that is, for prohibition.

Here and There

Saskatchewan's crop cost $187,000,000 to produce last year. The proceeds amounted to $27,000,000.

During the month of April and the first two weeks of May 300 claims were registered in the counties of Temiskaming and Abitibi, the gold fields of the province of Quebec.

"Twenty marriage engagements are among the results of a round-the-world voyage of a C.P.R. liner." Mr. Dastly has a lot to answer for.

With a population which is over 70 per cent, rural Saskatchewan has a larger automobile registration than any other province. One in every 15 people owns a car.

Car of the largest fish caught in the history of Lake Umbagog was recently caught by E. B. Hamlin with a small bass hook and light and reel and a salmon trout weighing 24 pounds and measuring three feet in length.

In 1920 there were cut in Canada 1,243,556 cords of pulpwood. This wood, if piled four feet high and four feet wide, each in a continuous line over 6,100 miles, or the distance from Vancouver to Halifax, and out over the Atlantic to Queenstown, Ireland.

Trees to the number of 10,000 were destroyed among Saskatchewan school children by the Barks, Officials and Dominion Forestry Branch on the occasion of Arbor Day. Each child received one maple and one ash. Last year only 4,000 trees were destroyed.

The emigrants of France of the Canadian Pacific first row on the trans-Atlantic service between Hamburg, Southampton and Cherbourg to Quebec, holds the record for the fastest journey between Quebec and Liverpool, having crossed in 5 days, 2 hours and 31 minutes, just two hours less than the Empress of Britain.

General Sir Arthur Currie will unveil a memorial cairn at St. Louis, Marie to General Currie and his companion Grenville, the courages de bois, who fought the Battle and discovered Lake Superior in 1622. The unveiling will take place August 15th during Discovery Week, when the Olympics will produce "Hiawatha" on two afternoons.

Notwithstanding that there will be an increase this year in Canadian Pacific steamship traffic on the St. Lawrence, with 17 more sailings than in 1922, Canadian Pacific officials report that ships are being well booked and that according to present indications the 1923 season will show improvement in ocean trade from both Montreal and Quebec.

Whales are reported early and plentiful this season and dispatches from Victoria state that conditions surrounding the inauguration of the deep-sea hunt this year are the most promising in more than a decade. The demand for canned whale meat has become so pronounced that the prospective pack of the Victorian whalers is already disposed of. England will be the distributing market for canned whale meat this year.

A relic of an old time Hudson's Bay fort, such as once was the nucleus of the western posts of the great company, and which still exist in the far north, will be erected at the Calgary Exhibition grounds, July 9 to 14, as a part of the big Stampede feature. Special arrangements are also being made to provide a commodious camping ground for the Old Timers who will attend with the old-fashioned chuck wagons and cowboy equipment.

Running on schedule the Canadian Pacific Steamship's liner "Empress of Canada," Captain J. H. Halley, again demonstrated her right to the title of "Queen of the Pacific." The Canadian vessel left Vancouver for Yokohama recently. The "Empress of Canada" docked about 8 A.M. and the "President McKinley" arrived at 8 A.M.

West Coast Motor Tour

1. The C. P. S. S. Motor Princess. 2. Check-out Driver, a link in the Pacific Highway. 3. Dance floor on the ferry.

NOT only have Bellingham, Wash. and Victoria, B.C., been brought into closer connection and more friendly relations by the recent inauguration of a ferry motor transport service by the new Canadian Pacific "Motor Princess," but western tourists as a whole have been provided with a new route to the Capital City of British Columbia, and one that has the alluring charm and refreshing diversion of a three and a half hours' water trip. The new water route for touring motorists from the mainland to Vancouver Island forms the base of a triangle which provides a circuit tour from Victoria through Nanaimo and Vancouver and via the beautiful Pacific Highway through New Westminster and Bellingham to Oregon and Washington destinations. This tour takes one through some of the most beautiful scenery on the continent. Exhilarating sea breezes are enjoyed along the whole route, which is through country the climate of which is so delightful equable, that the semi-tropical foliage is pleasing to the eye and fragrant the year round. In addition the ferry links the wonderful roads on Vancouver Island with the California Red Line, the western arm of the great 6,000 mile circle tour which embraces twelve national parks in the United States and three in Canada, and of which the Banff-Windermere Highway through the Canadian Rockies is so officially opened on June 30th, forms one of the most delightful parts. The ship which has made this Mainland-Island Circle tour possible was specially designed for the service and possesses many distinctive features. She has parking space for 50 automobiles on two decks and accommodation for 250 passengers, a saloon, smoking room, restaurant, dance floor, and deck spaces for promenade have been fitted up for the convenience of the travelling public, and the vessel is equipped with twin diesel engines which ensure a speed of 14 knots in all weathers.

British subsidized airplanes carried 11,450 passengers last year. Not one person was killed, and only one was injured.

It was announced at the annual meeting of the Royal Mail Packet Company that it is proposed to extend and strengthen the tri-weekly service between England and Vancouver, via the Panama Canal. Crop Prospects Never Better

All Indications Point to a Bumper Crop This Year.

Prospects for even a bigger crop in Western Canada than the bumper one last year were never better so far. Recent rains have saturated every foot of the prairie provinces and no area is without an ample supply of moisture. Warm weather since the rains have sent vegetation ahead with a jump. For miles on end, as far as the eye can reach, the wheat fields form an unending carpet of green, while in the cities and towns trees by the roadways show a riot of growth; on lawns lilacs are in bloom, and in backyards fruit and vegetable are flourishing. Several prominent farmers who never yield to undue optimism, and who have known Western Canada intimately for twenty years, express the general opinion in saying that prospects, from a crop standpoint, were never better at this season on the prairies.

LOW SPIRITED AND DEPRESSED

A Condition Due to Poor Blood and Weak Nerves.

Nearly all women and most men suffer at times from fits of depression and low spirits, from which they are unable to free themselves. They cannot attend to their duties satisfactorily and are unable to get any pleasure out of life. People who suffer in this way soon lose their energy of mind and body. They lack vitality because their blood is poor and ill-nourished, and their nerves are starved in consequence. The only way to obtain new health is by building up the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The new rich blood made by these pills will carry renewed health and energy to every part of the body. Your appetite will improve, your spirits brighten and you will be endowed with fresh energy and find a new joy in living. Mrs. G. Reid, Napanee, Ont., tells of the benefit she found through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says: "I have used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills on different occasions and cannot emphasize too strongly the benefits derived from them. I was growing nervous, my complexion was becoming sallow and my eyes dull and listless. My vitality was poor and I did not sleep well. I became despondent, losing interest in my work, which seemed to tire me so easily. I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after taking six boxes I began to enjoy life again and looked much brighter and felt happier. My appetite improved, I gained in weight and could sleep without any nervous wakefulness during the night. I can use these pills as a nursing my baby and found them a wonderful help both for myself and for making my baby better satisfied. For these reasons I gladly recommend them to anyone who needs a tonic for the rebuilding of strength and energy."

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Can Carry Your Music Around In Your Vest Pocket

The first timepieces were huge. Now they go on your wrist. The same thing has happened to gramophones. A Hungarian mechanic has invented a gramophone, no larger than a watch, and his slogan is, "Carry your orchestra in your vest pocket." The invention is described as a practical instrument capable of producing "bass, waltzes, and one-step." "The Mikki-phones," as it has been christened, sounds like a watch, and has a speed regulator. There is room inside for ten plates, giving a repertoire of twenty selections. In the other vest pocket one can carry enough music for an all-night session. By placing the instrument on a champagne glass the sound is amplified sufficiently for an ordinary-sized ballroom.

Mrs. Connor Declares Stomach Trouble Was So Bad She Could Hardly Eat At All

"If I hadn't gotten Tanlac when I did I believe I would have had to go to a hospital," declared Mrs. Wm. Connor, 215 Hess St., Hamilton, Ont., recently.

"My stomach was so disordered that everything I ate made me deathly sick, and caused pains in the pit of my stomach that nearly drove me distracted. Often the agony was so great I couldn't help crying, and for two or three days at a time I wouldn't eat a morsel of food. I was as nervous as a wren, miserable for the want of sleep, and often wonder now how I lasted through it all."

"The splendid results my husband got from Tanlac about a year ago caused me to try it, and the treatment ended my suffering in a few weeks time, and gave me a new lease on health. I don't believe there is a healthier woman in Hamilton than I am now, and I can't praise Tanlac enough."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

The Coming School Fair.

The time is here once more to begin preparations for the Annual School Fair in September next. In previous years this Fair has not been too successful, and Stony Plain District has not taken the prominent place in the ranks to which it was entitled. One reason for this, apparently, was the lack of co-operation. Many other towns consider the School Fair quite as important as the one held by the Agricultural Society, and parents and citizens, as well as teachers and pupils, work together to make it a success. In an effort to maintain the standard of our School Fair, a meeting will shortly be held in Stony, when a speaker from the Department in Edmonton will be present and give an address on this important work, following which a Fair board will be organized. All interested are urged to attend when the date can be arranged.

The most noticeable features of this game were the tedious waits and a gabby umpire.
